THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7.

The correspondence in relation to the demand of President Grant that Count Catacazy should cease to represent the Russian Government at Washington, which was sent to the Senate yesterday, gives the reasons of the notification that if he was not recalled after the visit of the Grand Duke he would be furnished his passports. He is accused of interfering in Congress, and by means of newspaper correspondence, with affairs that did not belong to him, and of using abusive and vituperative language towards persons in official station. The beginning of the correspondence is a letter from Mr. Catacazy to Secretary Fish denying most positively any connection with a letter in the New York World of November 29, 1870. calculated to embroil Russia and the United States. The correspondent of the World, in reply to an inquiry from Secretary Fish, states that the letter in question was inspired directly by Mr. Catacazy. Finally the Russian Government requested that Mr. Catacazy be tolerated here until after the presentation of the Grand Duke to the President: and to this request our Government acceded. Hence Mr. Catacazy ceased to represent the Russian Emperor after the presentation.

The New York Post states that Governor Hoffman, of N. York, expresses the opinion that the present organization of the Democratic party, at the North, can effect nothing in relation to a Presidential candidate-that the party must be dissolved-and that he is in favor of a new party, out and out, and is ready to act with Horace Greeley, Carl Schurz, and Charles Sumner in forming one, on the basis of national reform, a strict construction, and the supremacy of the civil over the military power. Mr. Greeley announces that he will not be "a party to any back-stairs intrigues for the Presidency. The "President makers" seem to all be bu y just now. The statement as to Gov. Hoffman we give as we find it.

Gov. Walker, in his Message to the Legislature of Virginia, in that portion of it relating to national affairs, recapitulates the arbitrary acts of Congress and the President, and denounces their encroachments on the rights and liberties of the people and the States, in forcible terms, dwelling with especial emphasis on the late act for the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, and drawing a sombre picture of the present condition of the National Government, and the dangers which menace it.

Mr. Willard, of Vermont, introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday a bill to extend the benefits of the act granting pensions for the war of 1812, to officers and soldiers who served thirty days, and were honorably dis- ten by Miss Emily V. Speaking of the sale of the State's interest in various public works in Virginia, the Richmond Enquirer says:-

"This is an excellent opportunity for capital to invest. All these railroads and canals will be valuable property in time. They will share the bright fortunes now opening up before Virginia, and, in a very few years, will be productive beyond the realization of our most extravagant dreams. It would be a grand thing, if we could so have it, that the Legislature should have nothing to do hereafter, in any form, with works of internal improvement. And we believe that this could be accomplished by the passage of a General Railroad law, authorizing, under proper restrictions, any body of citizens of the State to build such works at pleasure, without applying to the General Assembly for

Ches ter, it seems, had an interview with the Emperor of Russia a year or two ago, and is well acquainted with the Duke. Another colored man, named Dorsey, who lives in Locust street Philadelphia, was refused in the same way.

Mr. Waddell, of North Carolina, yesterday, created a slight stir in the House by offering a resolution calling upon the President for information in regard to the "invasion" of North Carolina by troops stationed in South Carolina, and the arrest of citizens of the former State. An objection seemed to be to the use of the word "invasion," and Mr. Butler, objected to the introduction of the resolution, and thus knowleged. sent it over, as unanimous consent was required.

We think we have had cold weather here but Minneapolis papers of Wednesday last claim that the thermometer at that place marked seventeen degrees below zero. At St. Cloud the papers laughed at its neighbor Minneapolis, and asserted that their thermometer registered twenty five degrees below zero at six o'clock on the same morning. At St. Paul fifteen degrees below zero was the figure.

The trial of Joseph T. Marcer, late city treasurer of Philadelphia was commenced yesterday for conspiracy with C. T. The witnesses called for the prosecution sustained the charges preferred.

Yesterday was the second day of the trial of Mrs. Wharton, the greater portion of the session being occupied by counsel in arguing whether or not it was competent for a witness to state the motives which induced General Ketchum to visit the dwelling of Mrs. Wharton. POSTOFFICE ROBBERS.—There is probably no thief who is so absolutely certain of final detection and a long term in the penitentiary as the habitual postoffice robber. He is almost invariably connected with the mail service, and his career runs pretty much in the following sequence: A fast life, suspicion, a baited let ter or a quiet watcher, detection, conviction. confinement. The latest case was in Louisville, Kentucky. Letters were missed in the city postoffice for more than a year. T. W. Lendrum, a night clerk, whose duty it was to receive and dispatch the mails, was leading a pretty fast life, sporting splendid diamonds and keeping a fine horse and mistress, and leaning money with a freedom that his salary, of about a thousand dollars per annum, did not seem to warrant. Then was T. W. L. quietly watched by night, when he supposed himself alone in ! the office, and after about a week was seen in the act of secreting letters in his coat pocket. The end of this young man's course does not need to be told. The following extract from the Courier-Journal gives it as far as we care

The watchers had accomplished their weary and disagreeable task. They immediately quitted their stand and entered the building, when Officer Brennan approached the misguided young man and tapping him on the shoulder, quietly remarked : "I want you.

to be taken into custody without resistance orattempt to escape, which would have been entirely fatile.

"I want those letters in your pocket," said the officer.

Lendrum a ked him to step aside, probably wishing to avoid the mortification of disgorg ing his plunder in the presence of his fellowemployees. The officer complied, and Lendrum gave up the letters, eleven in number, saying as he did so: "I wish I was hung."

He was searched for other property, and hi bank book and some valuable jewelry were taken from him. The bank book showed that he had some time ago upwards of $1,100 on deposit, and had at this time probably a balance of over $1,000 to his credit. He is known to have a fine horse, and among the jewelry was a diamond cross, estimated to be worth $800 or $1,000, a splendid diamond pin, worth probably two hundred, a diamond ring, a gentleman's gold watch, and a lady's handsome gold watch, ornamented with diamonds. The guilty young man was lodged in jail.

AN OLD DOCUMENT. - The Washington Star says:-In overhauling the old documents in the Treasury Department recently, the following agreement, made between our Government and the Marquis de la Fayette, was brought to tic character and private virtues of that great light. It is interesting in itself, and as showing how great undertakings required short contracts only in our early history :

AGREEMENT OF MARQUIS DE LA FAYETTE. The desire evinced by the Marquis de la Fayette of serving in the armies of the United States of North America, and the interest which he takes in the justice of the cause, and wishing for an opportunity of distinguishing himself in war, and of rendering himself useful to the extent of his ability: but not concealing from himself that he may be unable to obtain the consent of his family to his serving in foreign countries, or to cross the ocean, unless he shall go there in quality of a General officer, I believe I cannot better serve my country, and act in accordance with my power to grant commissions, than in conferring on him, in the name of the Most Honorable Congress, the rank of Major General, which, I pray, the States will confirm, ratify and promptly bestow a commission for him to assume and hold the rank, from this date,

His high birth, his connexions, the honorable titles which his family enjoy at this Court, his very considerable wealth in this kingdom, his personal merits, his renown, his disinterestedness, and above all, his zeal for the liberty of our provinces have alone induced me to promise him the above rank of Major General, in the name of the United States.

The Governor thinks the great need of Virginia is, capital and population, and advises a thoroughly organized system of agencies abroad for the diffusion of accurate information and the management of the business there, and recommends a plan for building up the waste places, and filling the State with emigrants, which will doubtless receive the careful consideration of the Legislature. The Governor says that we have not now a correct assessment of lands in the Commonwealth some being assessed too low, and some too high. He favors an equalization of taxation. The reports of the three insane asylums, he asserts, challenge comparison with any institution of like character in the country, and one, or both, of the present asylums, he thinks, must be enlarged, or a new one erected. The report of the Board of Directors of the penitentiary exhibits a marked improvement in the affairs of the institution. and the recommendation of the Board and the Superintendent for the extension of the prison accommodation, is endorsed. The Governor calls the attention of the Legislature to the frequency of elections, and regards it as one of the most serious objections to the present Coustitution. He thinks there ought not to be more than one election each year for State purposes, and recommends an amendment to the Constitution requiring all State elections to be held on the same day every two years, and on a different day from that fixed for the Federal elections. This, he favors, because of the interference of Congress by the passage of the en PORT OF SLEXANDRIS, DECR. :. forcement act. Speaking of this, he says :-Under pretence of protecting the freedom of the ballot, it strikes down the freedom of the citizen, and under the guise of regulating the election of Congressmen is sought the control of the affairs of the State. He says the sue cess of the school system inaugurated by the last Legislature has exceeded the warmest expectation, and commends the foresight and wisdom of the people, rallying to its support. although so heavily burdened with debt and crippled by the war. After referring to the assumption of the President of the U. S. in suspending the writ of habeas corpus he says. 'I would that I could present a less sombre picture-that I could congratulate you upon the complete restoration of the national government to its pristine purity and excellence strong in the affections of the people and the just exe-cution of their sovereign will. Mr. L. was one of the soundest and most popular members last session, and there is a general hope expressed that he will soon be able to re-occupy his seat.

In the Senate, to-day, Mr. Thomas, of Fairfax, offered the following joint resolution: "Resolved, That so much of the Governor's message as proposes amendments to the Constitution of Virginia be referred to a joint committee of seven on the part of the House and five on the part of the Senate, and that said committee be authorized to consider the expediency of proposing such amendments to the Constitution as they may deem expedient and necessary, in the manner now prescribed by the Constitution and laws, or the alternative of presenting a bill submitting the question for caliing a convention for the purpose of framing a new Constitution for the State of Virginia, and providing for the apportionment and election of delegates.
